About Us:

We are a multidisciplinary company, based in Ancona, specializing in residential new construction and renovation, retail, contract, hospitality, executive business and maritime works. Our expertise also includes industrial design and graphic design services coordinated with architectural design. Since 2016 we have been working together to create unique and recognizable projects, functional and eternal.

We are Architects, Engineers and Designers. Every day we face with methodological rigor different design scales.

From architectural concept to interior details, from industrial design to graphic design. To realize with a well-defined system your needs, materializing your dreams.

From the idea to the realization. We interpret each project as the encounter between space and personality. Respecting the identity of the place and following the habits of those who live it. We analyze the critical points and develop new ideas and solutions to enhance it. We check and control the phases of development, following with great attention the entire work on site to design the right space for you.

ARCHITECTURE:

It is the broadest dimension of our design activity, integrated and sustainable, which always pays great attention to the quality of living and comes from the comparison of the multidisciplinary skills of our team.

In this way we take care of the value of the context, the needs of the customer and the social role that the intervention will have. Because a building, a house, a space is not just a container, but the image of the user who will live it. For this reason it is not enough that it is beautiful and functional. It must also relate to the landscape that surrounds it and to the characteristics of the project site.

INTERIOR:

It is the most personal dimension of our design activity, which pushes us to always imagine new solutions for contemporary living. Everything starts from the needs and desires of the customer and a full understanding of his lifestyle. After a careful analysis we arrive at the selection of some characterizing elements from which the project will take shape. Then we organize the spaces, making dialogue between materials, colors and light to make living dynamic, flexible and representative.

DESIGN:

It is the most detailed dimension of our design activity. We move in this wide area ranging from industrial design to communication design. So we develop creative projects and graphics for companies and individuals, with the aim of obtaining innovative and uniquely designed products. We support our customers from the early stages of the concept, with development processes, photorealistic images, vector graphics, 3D modeling and catalogs, until the launch of the product.

Project: Villa Orizzonte
Category: Architecture
City: Castelfidardo
Year: 2022

This is a 3 floors villa that aims to mix contemporary shapes and luxury furniture. The architecture is made of the union of simple white or light grey volumes and black shelters. Two big walls cut the building giving it the two most important directions. They are covered with a gress like marble tiles. Glazed surfaces open the building to the surrounding, giving it a strong relationship with the outside. Gardens a pool and some open air living spaces complete the project.

Particular attention is given at the relationship between the architecture and the climate conditions. Glazed surfaces looking to the south are protected by the black shelters from the hot temperature of the summer. During the winter, the sun is lower and can come across the glass, inside the spaces. The fresh air come inside the building and goes away taking advantage of the patio positioned in the centre of the plan, where is place a tree.

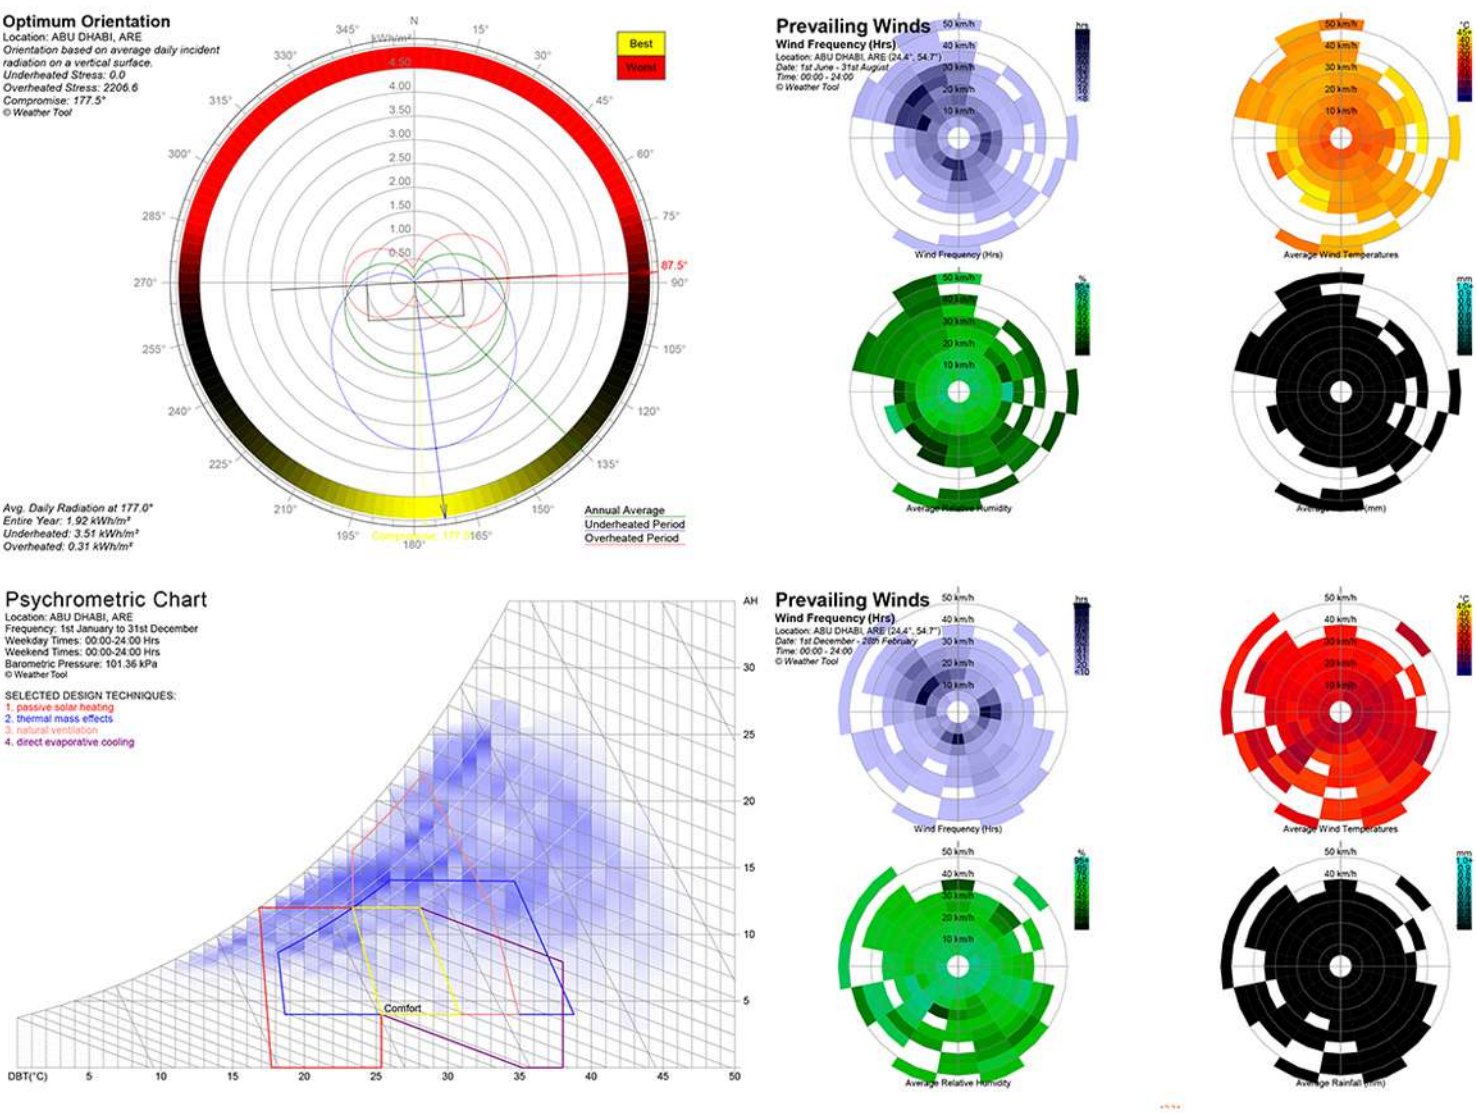

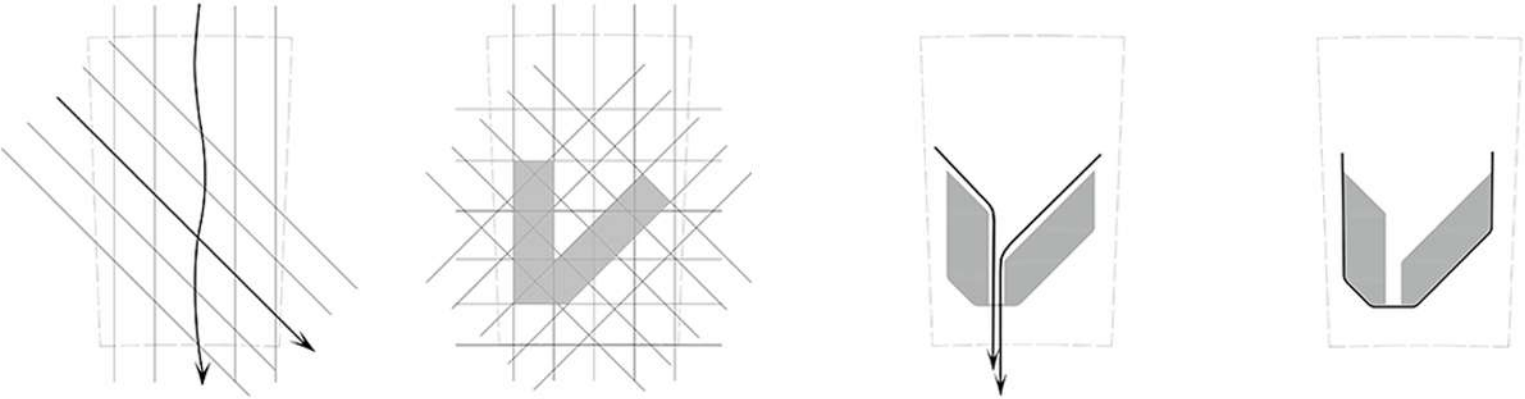

The patio element is interesting both in its enlighting and climatic behaviour. In the house is also applied the rain recycling, used for its big garden.

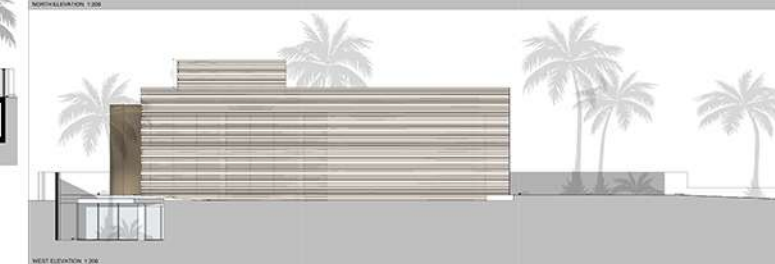

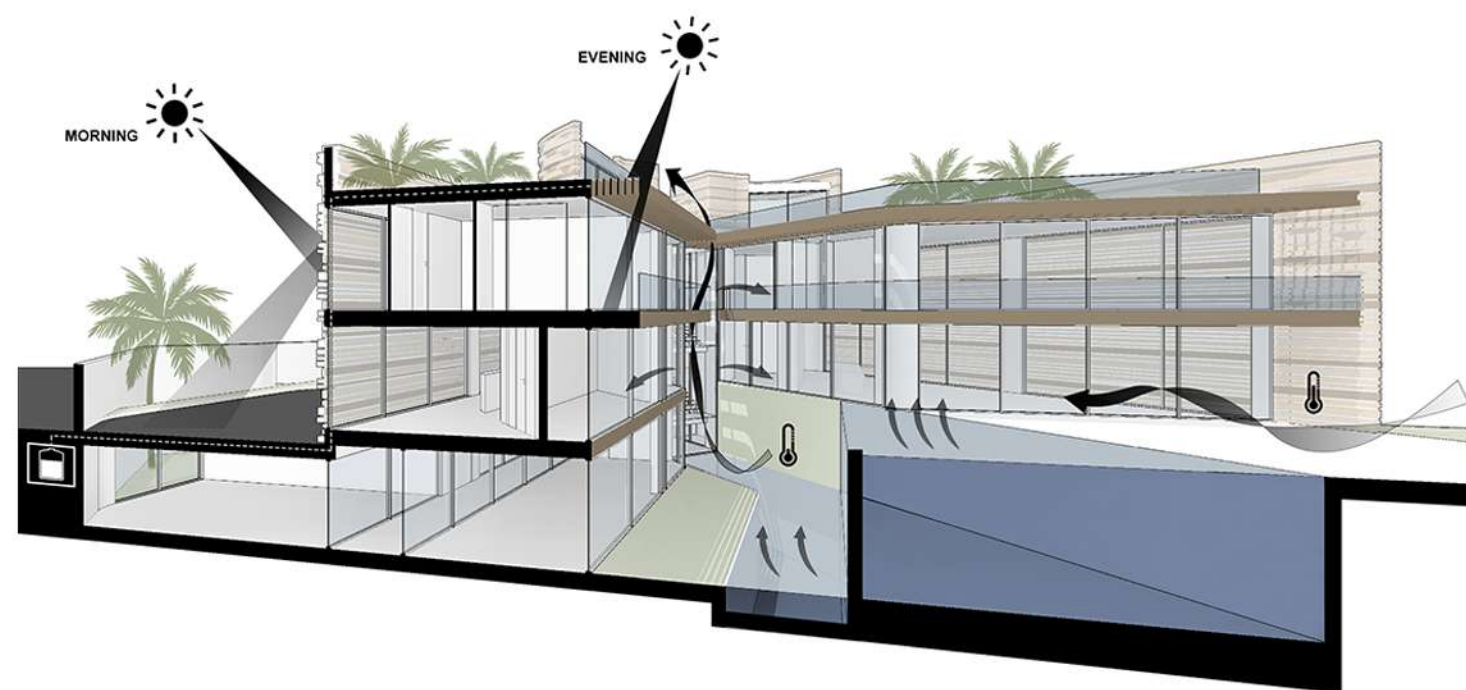

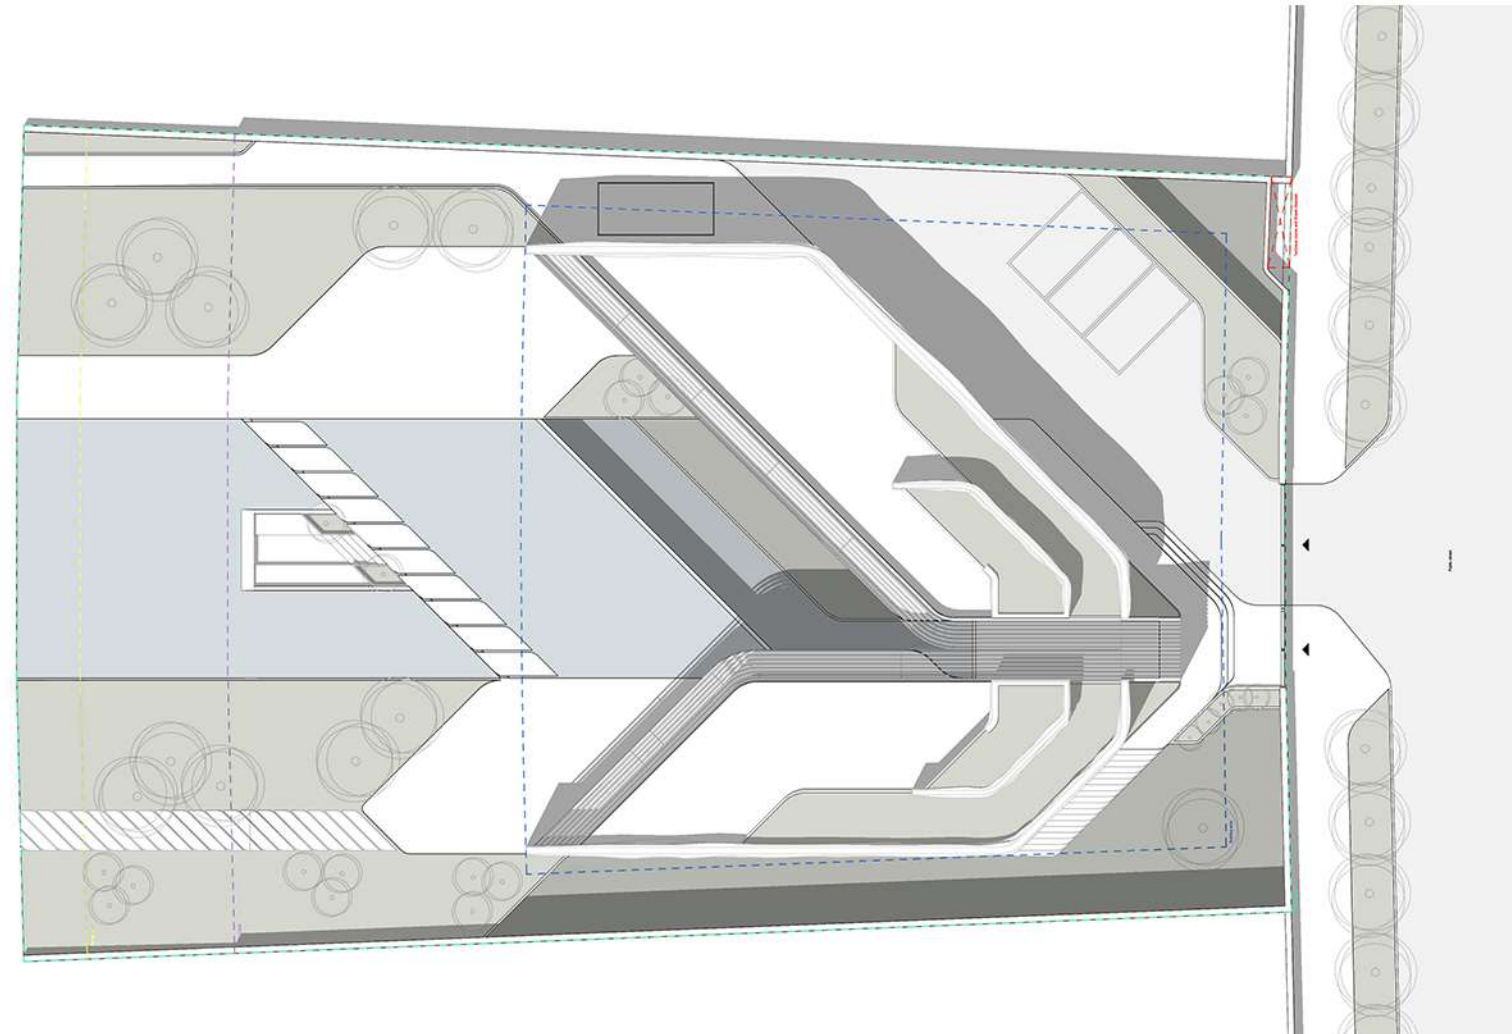

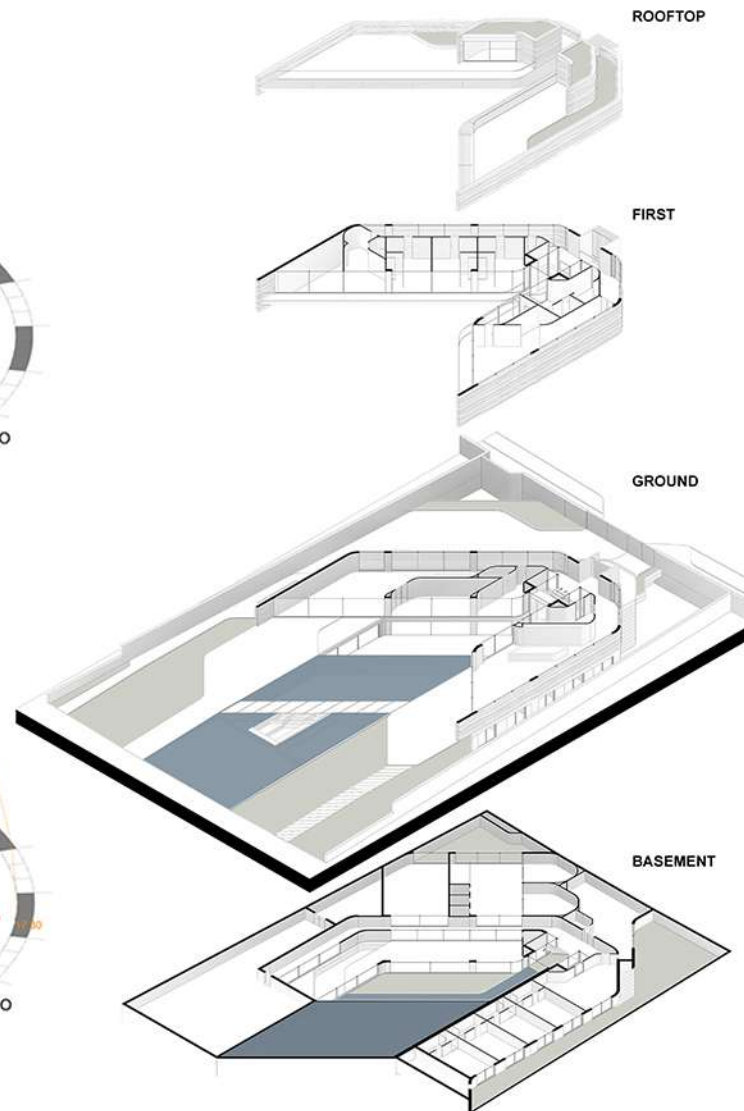

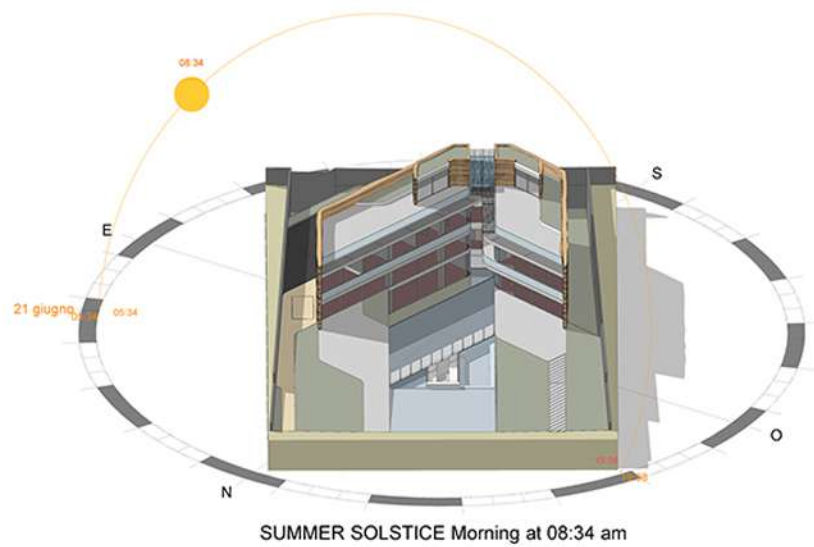

Project: Villa Rock
Category: Architecture
City: Dubai
Year: 2023

The design idea was born from an in-depth study of the context, shaped by natural forces, a complex of sandy dunes molded by the impetuous action of the winds and the sea. As in Arabic the word wind is called ruh, which also translates to breath creator, the force of the dominant air currents and water become the Genius Loci creator of the design process. The project is in fact made up of a plastic volume eroded by the action of the dominant forces. The dynamism of their effect is simulated on the external finish in local sandstone, chosen according to the characteristics of durability and resistance, as in the Darwinian selection, according to which organisms that know how to adapt to the context survive. The villa, closed on the southern front to counteract the arid climatic conditions prevailing with a shell that acts as a shade, opens completely towards the sea with the aim of contemplating a domestic dimension, far from the frenzy of life in Dubai, silent, in which nature and architecture coexist synergistically allowing you to capture the smell of salt and the peaceful noise of the sea, giving sensations and vital perceptions to enjoy.

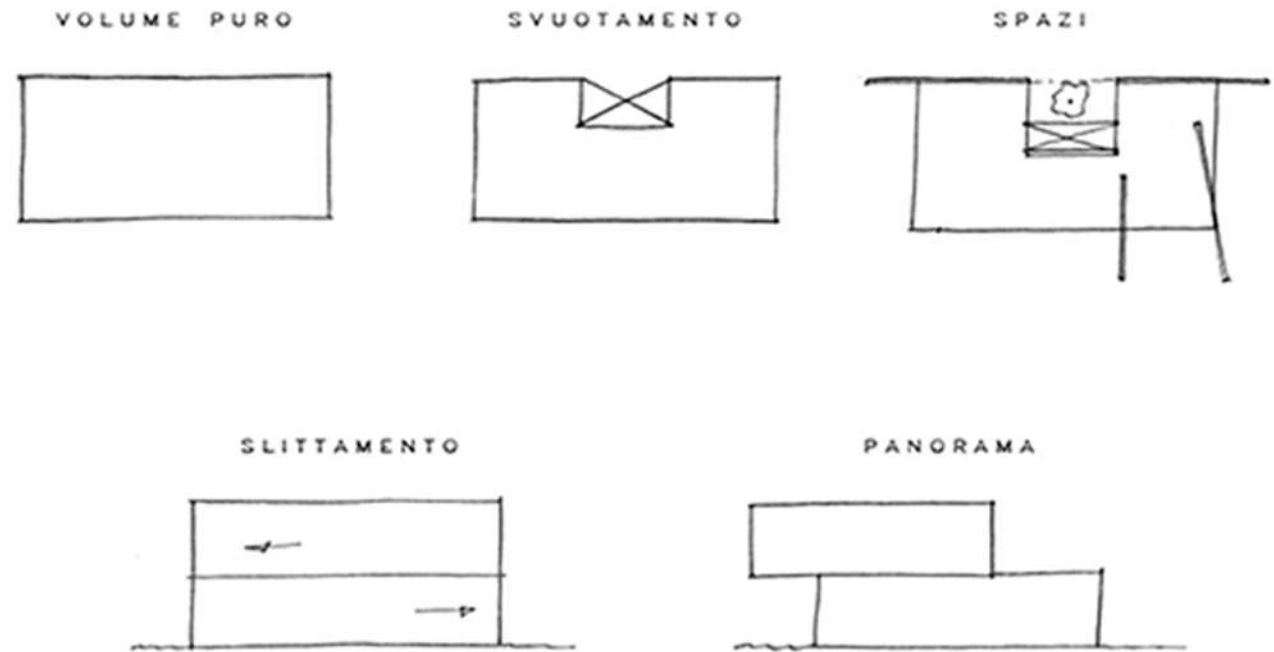

Project: Villa PN
Category: Architecture
City: Palermo
Year: 2021

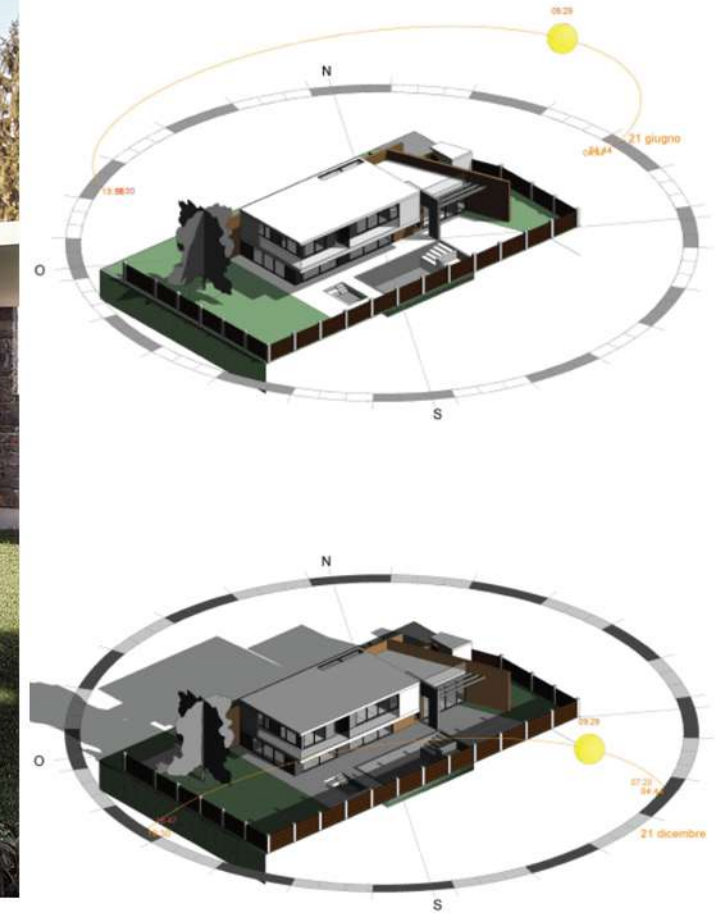

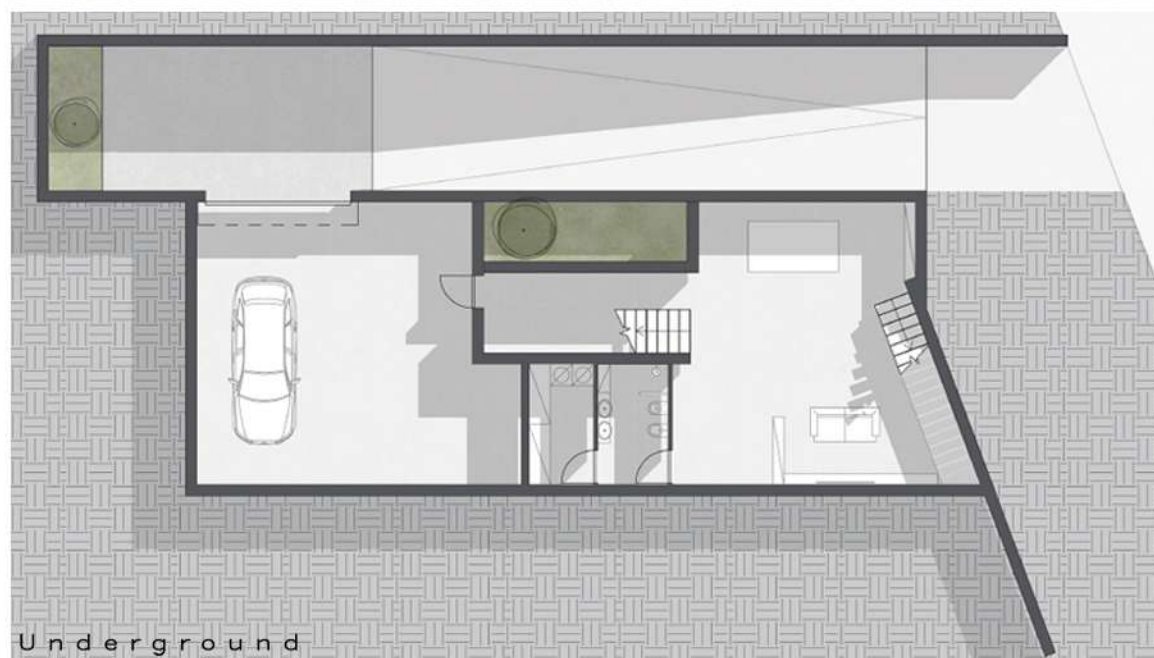

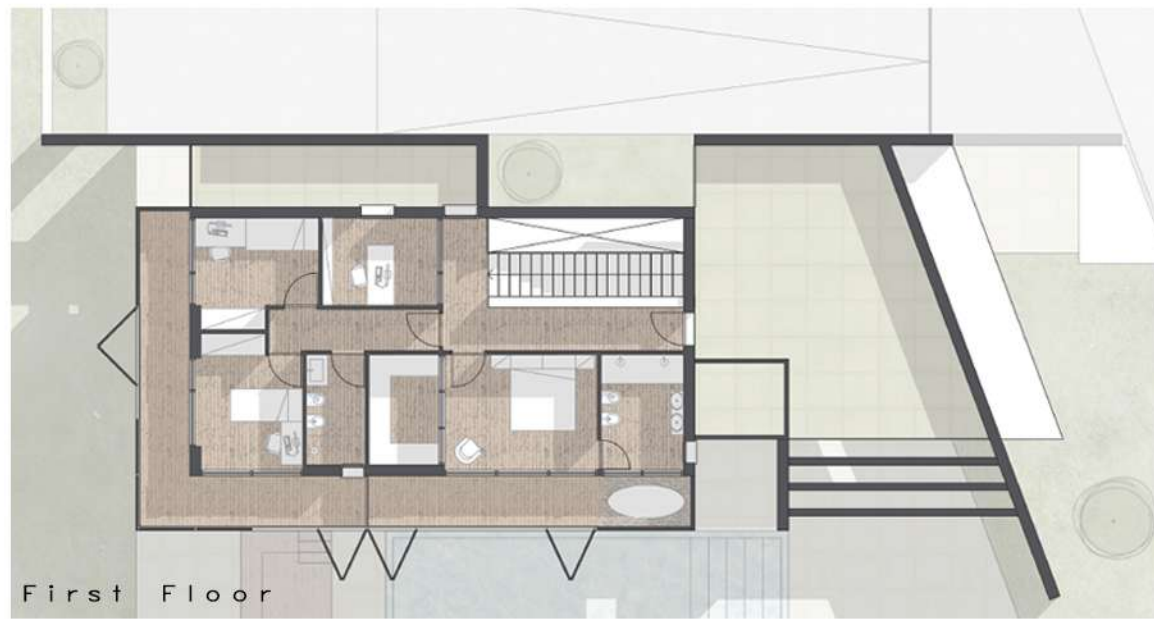

The villa is born from the emptying and slipping along the horizontal axis of the initial pure volume, whose regularity is broken by the partitions that generate the rooms of the house.

The main fulcrum of the villa is the central wall on which is leaning the staircase leading to the upper floor: it generates the division of the spaces on the ground floor, which maintain their own identity, while allowing a visual and spatial continuity between them.

The large windows allow the opening to the outside thus generating a unique environment with the inside, a key prerogative of the project, in which architecture and nature blend. The technology of the sunshades that close on themselves allows you to manage the solar radiation according to the need, so as to have a facade in continuous evolution.

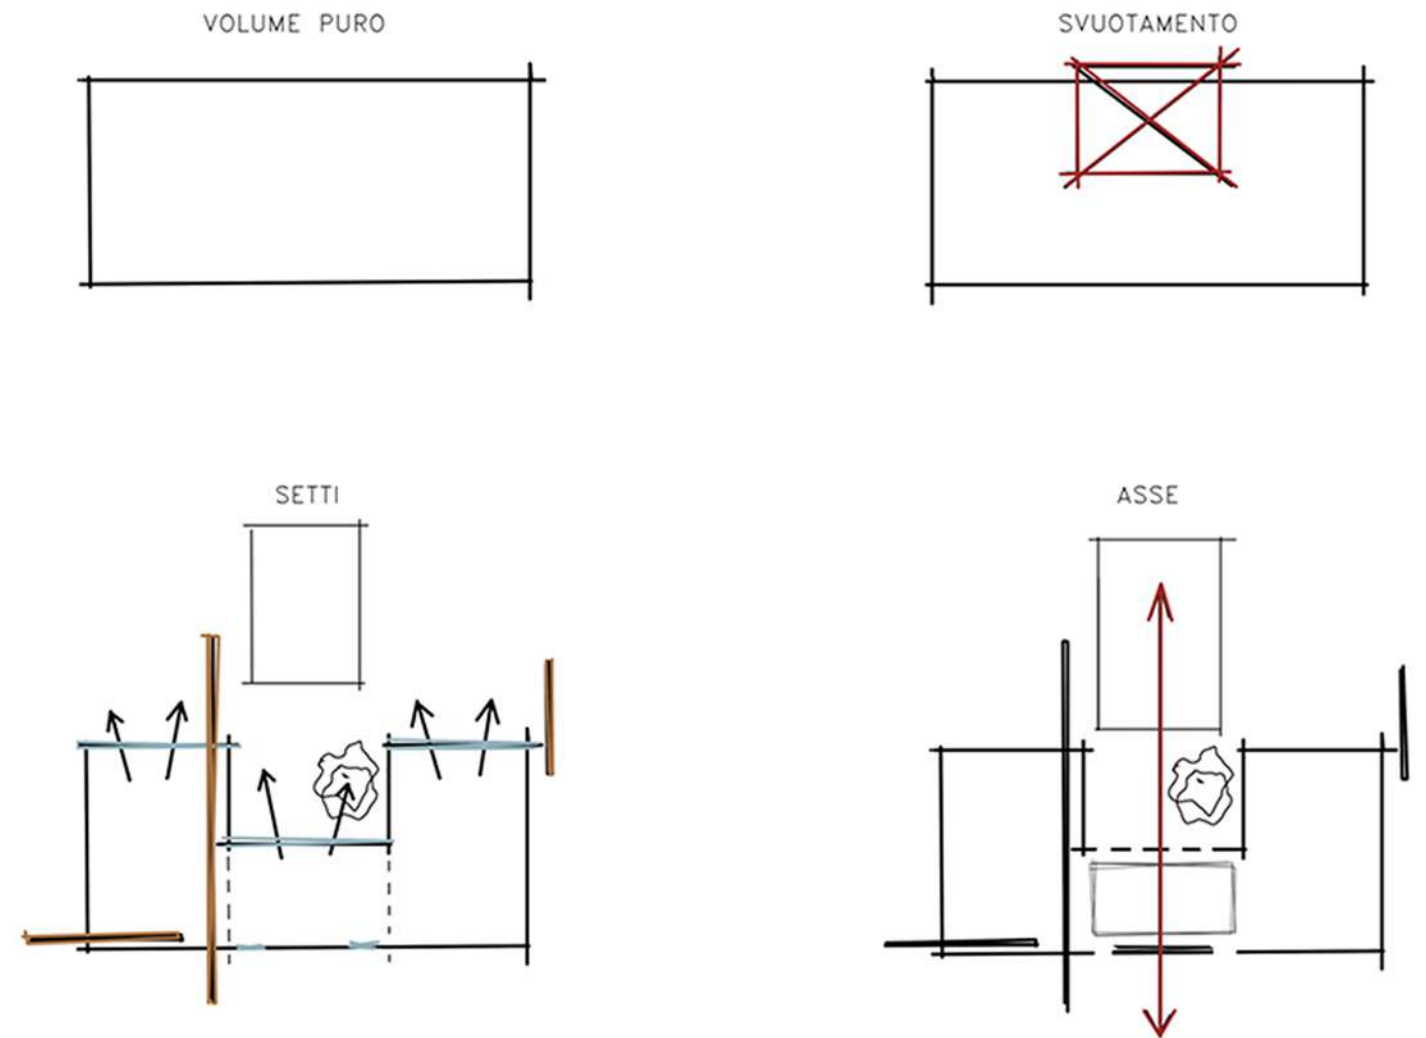

The materials used are local stone and wood that contrast, characterize the space making it authentic and classy.

Open space is the key word of this project.
The wide spaces, inside and outside, are configured as a single environment usable as freely as possible.
The very shape of the villa and the local stone partitions, peculiar elements in this architecture, give a functional scan of the space.
On the other hand, the entirely glazed walls, eliminate the gap between inside and outside.
Despite the absence of boundaries, all the architectural elements allow the reading of a single central axis that, starting from the outside, contains artificial and natural elements, culminating in a double internal height, the fulcrum of the house.

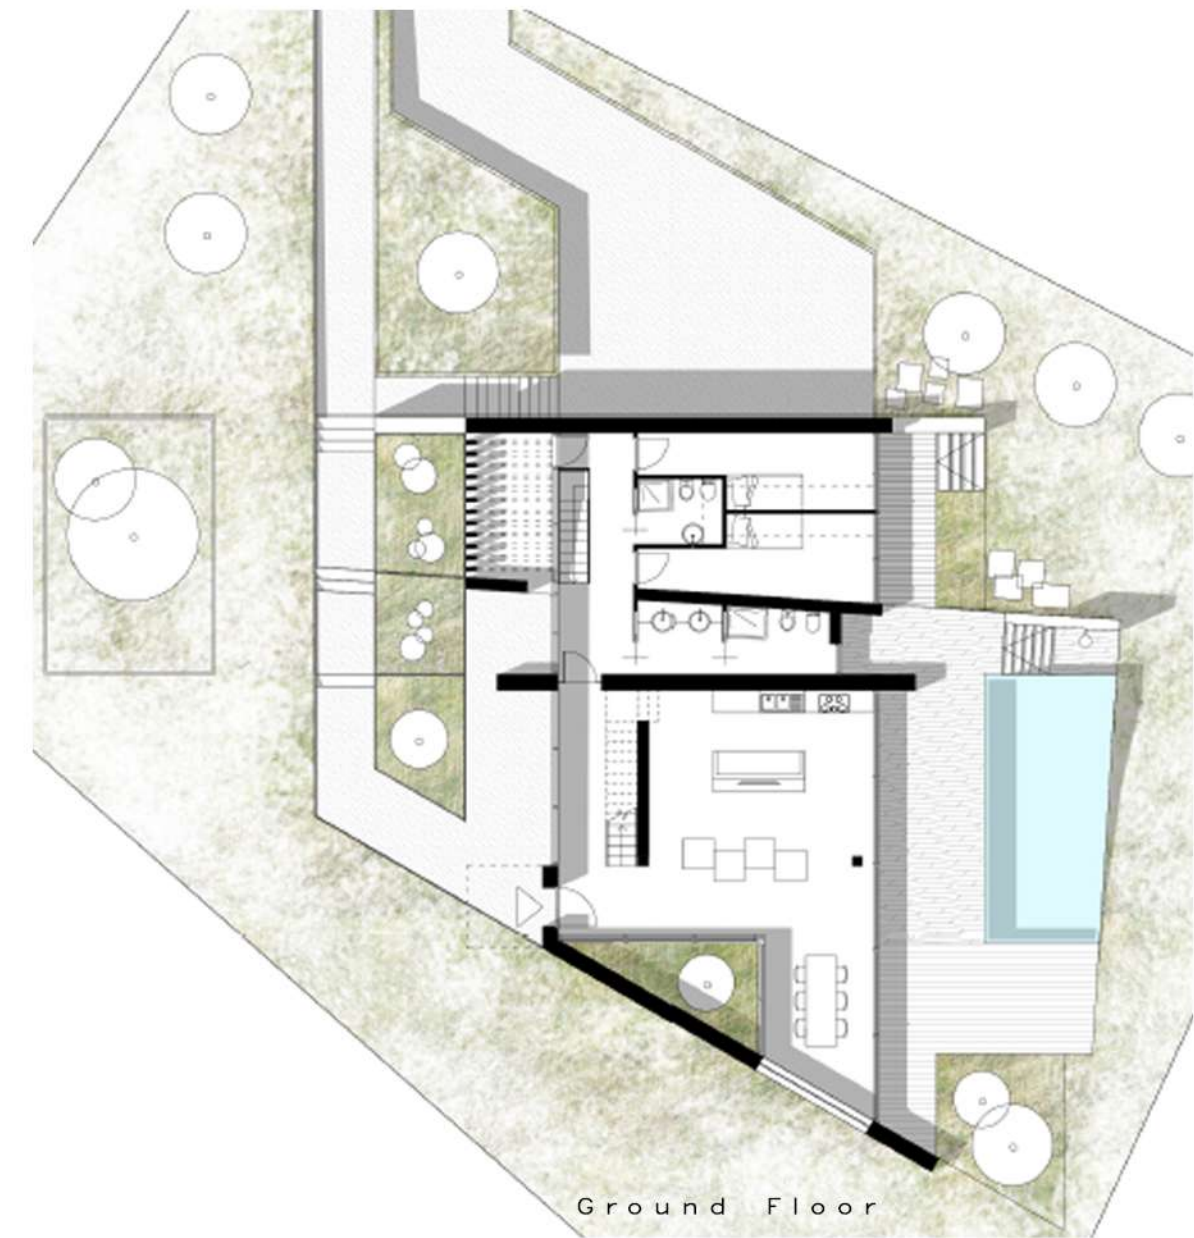

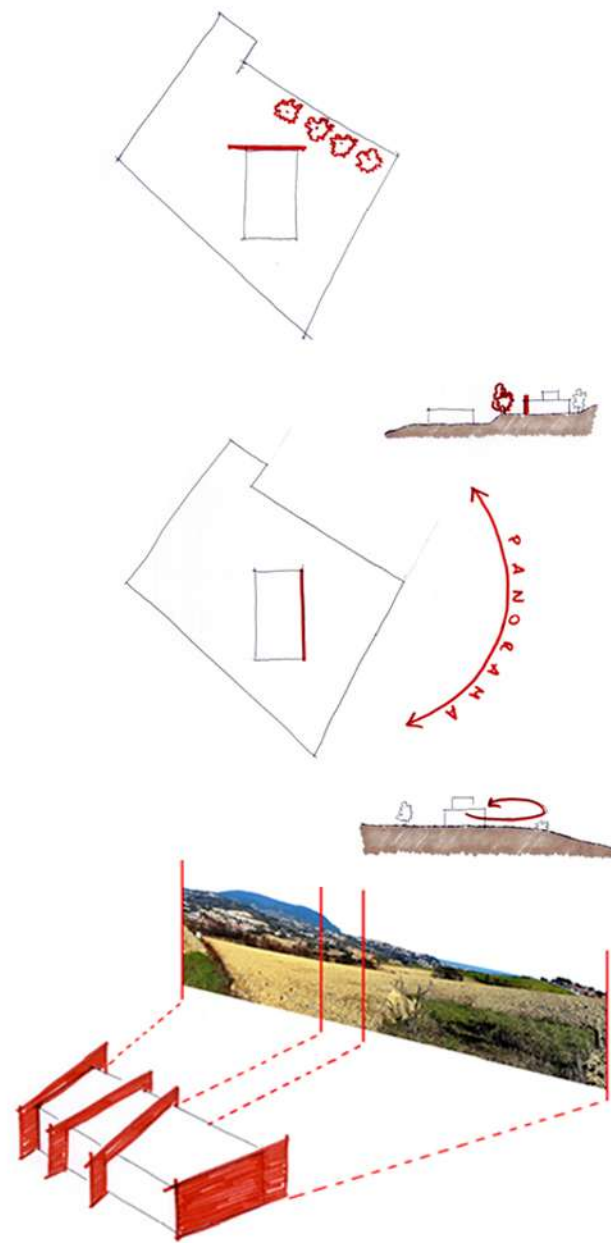

Project: Building Mille
Category: Architecture
City: Civitanova Marche
Year: 2021

Innovative, technological and energy efficient residences aimed at the quality of the spaces and their livability. Large windows and large balconies guarantee a continuity between interior and exterior that, together with valuable materials and finishes, create apartments with a unique and motivating character. The facades are characterized by projecting bands where wood, glass and vegetation are integrated creating a perfect harmony.

Project: Villa Sirolo
Category: Architecture
City: Sirolo
Year: 2017

This house is placed on a hill in Sirolo countryside. It is made of 3 floors: the underground with the garage, ground floor with living, kitchen, two bedrooms and toilets and in the first floor is placed the master bedroom. The plan is cut by walls, this walls are also covered with the local white stone that come across the volume dividing it in different slices. The walls focus the attention to the beautiful landscape with the panoramic view on Sirolo, Conero mountain and the seaside. The partitions mark the different functions of the house and the strong relationship between the outside and the inside characterize the spaces with light and air.

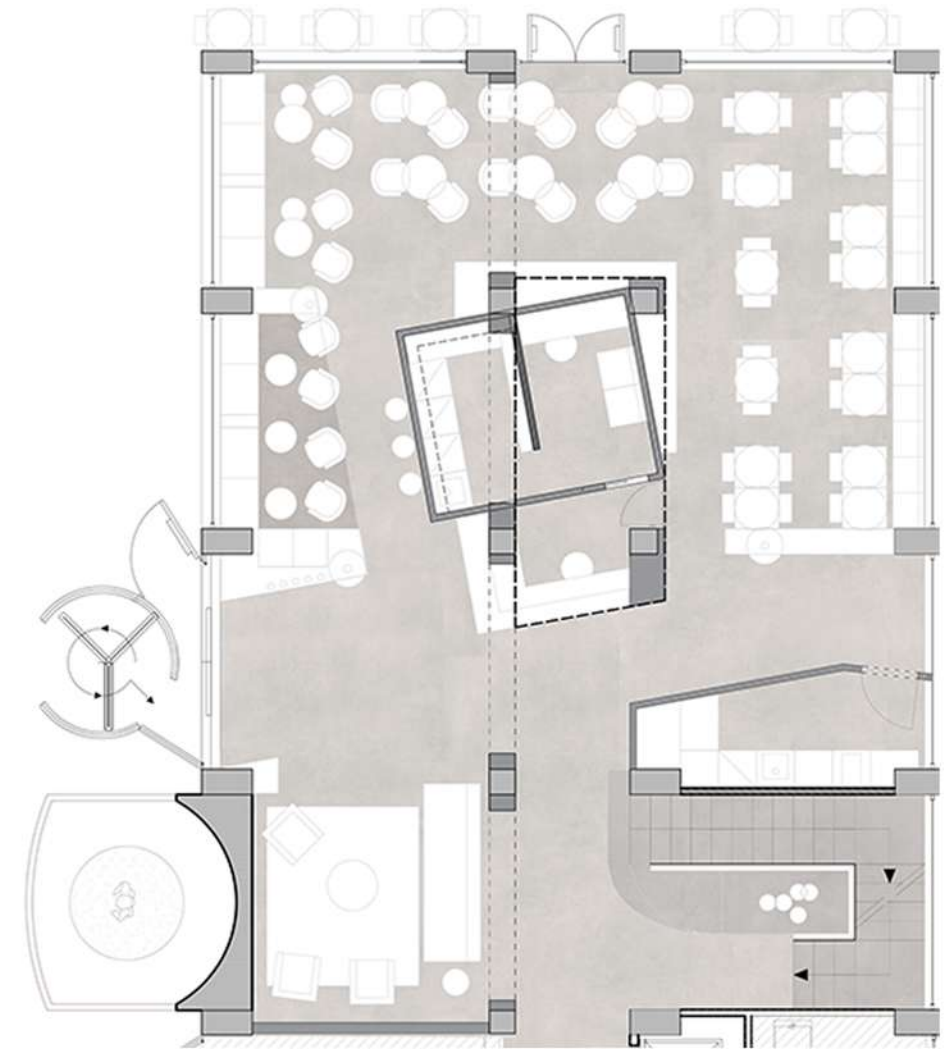

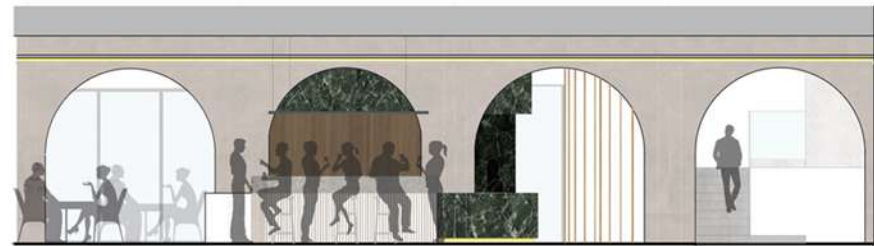

Project: Hotel dei Nani
Category: Architecture
City: Jesi
Year: 2022

The project deals with the restructure of the space with the aim of giving it a new identity.

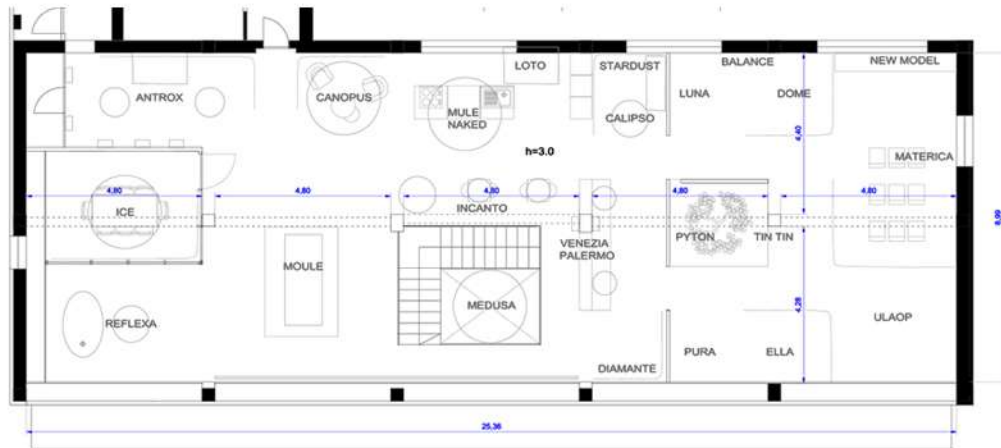

The intervention consists in dividing the environment in half by using an arched filter element that stands out as a pure volume identifying different functions, receptive and restorative.

The main use of Alpi green marble allows you to resume the historicity of the existing structure, and in addition with the backlit onyx gives the environment a new vintage style.

Project: Showroom Marchetti
Category: Architecture
City: Ancona
Year: 2022

The project consists in the renovation of the external facade and the internal environment: this has been emptied and transformed into a black box, where the rooms are generated by curtains on rollers that make the space flexible and dynamic. The spaces become the backdrops for the luxury lamps, the brand's signature.
